What is Siberian Ginseng?

Siberian Ginseng - also known as Taiga root "The root of Life..."

Siberian Ginseng has been used as a remedy in traditional Chinese as well as Korean medicine for thousands of years. It was First mentioned around 40 BC. In Asia the Taiga root stands for a symbol of health and longevity. In historic times it was only used by Kings and Emperors and was more precious than gold.

The Ginseng's contribution to health is partly due to its content of saponins. Ginseng is used to fight against feelings of tiredness, weakness as well as receding performance and concentration. It is also used increasingly in the world of sports to enhance performance in a natural manner.

In the 20th Century the value of Ginseng has finally been recognized by conventional medicine. The scientifically acknowledged circulation-stimulating effect of Ginseng is also interesting to note in potency power effects. Ginseng is one of the most important ingredients in many potency-enhancing-drugs all over the world.
